Let’s Start! Start Book for a “family management agreement” by a lively family

Purpose of Family Management Agreement

A “family management agreement” is for the management of agricultural, forestry and fisheries businesses in a partnership-like manner in which each member of a family mutually recognizes the other members’ characteristics and abilities and they work together as irreplaceable equal partners.

- To upgrade and grow business and life through dialogues in the family and gender equality
- To create a family relationship that respects each member
- For smooth succession by the next generation

The policy of management and each family member’s roles and working conditions are determined through family member dialogues. The agreement is carried by all family members and is reviewed when necessary.

A family management agreement is also an effective means of achieving work-life-balance at a corporation farm. Winners of the WAP100 (100 selected management entities with women’s active participation to create future agriculture) award have also signed the agreement.

Effects such as:

- a step toward the formation of a corporation;
- a tool for management improvement after the formation of a corporation;

can be expected.

It is important to determine the contents of the agreement considering, among other things, the future development of management.

What is a family management agreement?

Let's start a family management agreement!

There are no fixed rules for the content and form of a family management agreement. Let's start with what is needed one-by-one through discussions involving all family members.

Step (1) Let's share thoughts with each other
Let's share thoughts with each other, such as our current conditions of work and life, what we think every day and our sense of gratitude.

Step (2) Let's understand each other’s burdens and troubles
Let's also discuss the current sharing of work such as household chores, childrearing and nursing care. Let's share each other’s problems and consider ways of settling them, such as whether and how to reduce burdens and streamline work (sharing by all family members, outsourcing, reduction of frequency, etc.)

Step (3) Let's decide what should be included
Based on Step (1) and Step (2), let's include what has been agreed upon in accordance with the reality of family life and management. An agreement, when newly concluded, should include the policy of management, the division of farming work, the sharing of income, work hours and holidays, etc.

* An agreement is made more workable if it is prepared while listening to opinions of the nearest advisory organs, such as the regional agriculture extension office and the agriculture committee, and is concluded in the presence of a coaching organ as a third party.

Step (4) Let's review regularly
Let's review whether contents of an agreement have been executed on a regular basis. For what has failed to be accomplished, new challenges and other items, let's start discussions from Step (1). It is also important to make reviews in line with life stages.
Life stage-specific

◇Institutional merits
The following institutional benefits are available if a family management agreement includes each family member’s participation in management, the division of income and other issues and is concluded and implemented.

Joint application for certified farmers
A couple and others are allowed to jointly file as certified farmers on condition that they have concluded a family management agreement which specifies the sharing of income and participation in decisions on the policy of management, in the case that they effectively engage in joint management.

State subsidy for farmer annuity
Concluding a family management agreement with a certified farmer, etc., who files blue-form returns, his or her spouse or successor is eligible for a state subsidy covering a premium (20,000 yen) as the base of the annuity at a set rate.
Examples of family management agreements (married couple)

This section introduces four examples of actual purpose-oriented agreements.

* Following are examples of winners of the fiscal 2016 WAP100 award.

Example (1) K.K. Sasara (Business: Production and sale of tea)

The company was established by three families in 2006. Based on advice of a regional agriculture extension office, three families signed management agreements simultaneously with the preparation of their company's management plan. “Protection of leisure time” is given importance in the posted example. The agreement has enabled the families to secure holidays and sleeping hours, among others. Participation by managers’ wives has widened the range of product development to dressing and others which do not limit tea to “drinking.”

Example 2: Obata Chikusan LLC (Business: Pig farming)
We signed a family management agreement between husband and wife in 2000. We talked with each other and wrote our conclusions on paper. Consequently, the paper resulted in the agreement. It includes contents such as trips with peer pig farmers which were common when the agreement was signed. Conditions, such as “gathering at a destination for an overnight trip and dissolution after breakfast the following morning,” are aimed at making arrangements without neglecting the care of pigs. Our family management agreement is expressive of our feeling that we want to take responsibility in our own works.
Specific example of family management agreement (parents and successor)

Example (3) Marusen Kawamura (Business: vegetable, fruit, flower and sightseeing garden)

A family management agreement was prepared in 2003 and revised in 2013 to add "sections in charge" and "contents" in order to clarify the division of roles among family members as a premise for possible incorporation in the future. The revised agreement has been posted. As an advantage of the agreement, family members, given roles, feel they have "a place where they belong in the family" and have developed a sense of responsibility for the work they take charge of. As we are too busy every day to have enough time to talk with each other, time to dine out for "family meetings" is indispensable.

Example 4 Izumi Farm (Products: Vegetables, Fruits, etc.)

A family management agreement was concluded between the manager and his wife, in 1996, between the manager couple and their successor in 2000 and between the manager couple and the successor couple in 2015. Given as the biggest advantage of the agreement was it “makes us feel assured and believe we can succeed if we follow it.” The transfer of management has been progressing as mentioned in contents of the agreement and the successor has become the core of management. The scale of management has been expanded thanks to a shift to a breed of grape matching the times, although the cultivated area remains unchanged.
